

North Carolina College Media Association

Jonathan Albright is an assistant professor of communications at Elon University. He has worked for Yahoo and Google. He holds a Ph.D. from the University of Auckland in Australia and his research interests include social media, digital journalism and social news platforms.

Brooke Barnett is a professor of communications and associate provost for inclusive community at Elon University. She was the founding director of elondocs, the School of Communications' one-year documentary production program.

Camilla Brewer and Jes Coggins are graduate assistants in Elon's Gender & LGBTQIA Center.

Naeemah Clark is an associate professor of communications at Elon University. In her work, she pursues an interest in race, gender, economic status, disability, LGBTQIA and ethnicity as seen in the media. She has edited and co-authored books on the subject, including the book "Diversity in U.S. Mass Media."

Adam Constantine is the social media manager at Elon University. He returned to work at his alma mater after graduating in 2010. In the past, he has worked at a digital marketing firm in downtown Raleigh and played professional basketball in Europe, the Middle East and Asia.

Mark Dalhouse is the director of Study USA at Elon University and an assistant professor. He holds a Ph.D. in 20th century American political history from Miami University.

Colin Donohue is director of student media at Elon University. He's also an instructor in Elon's School of Communications.

Al Drago is a photographer for The New York Times, where he's covered the end of Obama's presidency, as well as the 2016 presidential election and the transition to the Trump administration. He graduated from Elon University in 2015 with a degree in journalism.

Coop Elias is the digital and social marketing manager for the Carolina Hurricanes. He has a decade of experience in the field of sports marketing.

Kenn Gaither is an associate dean and professor in Elon's School of Communications. He has written and co-written several books, including "Globalization and Postcolonial Relations: Challenges and Opportunities." He has nine years of professional and award-winning experience in the field of public relations.

Tommy Hamzik is a senior journalism major at Elon and executive director of Elon News Network, the university's award-winning student news organization.

Ben Hannam is an associate professor of communications at Elon University. He is also an award-winning designer, educator and author. In the past, he has taught at Virginia Tech and Virginia Commonwealth University in Qatar.

Monica Hill is the director of the North Carolina Scholastic Media Association, where North Carolina College Media Association is based.

Jason Husser is an assistant professor of political science and policy studies at Elon University. He is also the director of the Elon University Poll.

Jonathan Jones is the director of the North Carolina Open Government Coalition. He also teaches Media Law & Ethics and Media Writing in Elon's School of Communications. Previously, he was an assistant district attorney in Durham County and a newspaper reporter.

Tommy Kopetskie is the communications manager in Elon's School of Communications and the adviser to Phi Psi Cli, Elon's yearbook.

School of Media and Journalism
University of North
Carolina at Chapel Hill
284 Carroll Hall,
CB#3365
Chapel Hill, NC 27599-
3365

Cami Marshall Anthony an Emmy-nominated producer, currently working as the executive producer of the “Good Morning Show” at WFMY News 2, the TEGNA CBS affiliate in Greensboro. She has worked at WFMY News 2 since 2007 and in the almost 10 years since she started at the station, she has produced every newscast the station has, and helped launch the 2 Wants to Know 5:30 p.m. newscast.

Amber McCraw is the assistant director of career services for the School of Communications at Elon University. She helps students of all communications majors develop their employment-seeking skills, social media and personal branding.

Ellen Meder is an editorial adviser at N.C. State University Student Media. She was formerly the editor-in-chief of The Daily Gamecock at the University of South Carolina.

Max Negin is an assistant professor of communications at Elon University, the director of Elon Phoenix Weekly and a four-time Emmy winner. Previously, he has worked for several media outlets, including NBC, ABC and FOX, and has worked as a digital media manager for NBC Olympics coverage five times, most recently at Rio 2016.

Drew Perry is an associate professor of English at Elon University. He is the author of several short fiction, poetry and nonfiction works. He has written two award-winning novels: “This Is Just Exactly Like You” and “Kids These Days.”

Andi Petrini is the features and digital content editor at the Daily Press in Newport News, Virginia. The former sports editor also reviews books and writes entertainment articles for the Virginia paper.

Randy Piland is a senior lecturer of communications at Elon University. He has 30 years of experience as a photojournalist, 13 of which came as the picture editor and senior photographer at The Tennessean in Nashville, where he initiated the publication’s transition from film to digital.

Ashley Pinney is the associate director of employer and corporate relations in Elon’s School of Communications, supporting student professional development and connecting students to internship and career opportunities.

John Robinson is a lecturer at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He was the editor of the Greensboro News & Record.

Glenn Scott is an associate professor of communications at Elon University. Previously, he worked for more than two decades as a newspaper editor, metro columnist and reporter in the United States and Japan.

Bob Sutton is the sports editor at the Burlington Times-News.

Nagatha Tonkins is an assistant professor and internship director in Elon University’s School of Communications. Prior to joining Elon in 2008, she served as an internship director and assistant professor at North Carolina A&T State University. During her broadcast career, she worked as a morning TV anchor and producer for WGHP-TV in High Point.